Clinton County Law Enforcement "Fill a Cop Car" Event

On Saturday, December 11th from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Law Enforcement officers throughout Clinton County will be asking for your help. Our goal is to FILL OUR COP CARS with groceries. Officers will be at your local grocery stores with the purpose of helping to fill our local food banks with non-parishable food items. Police Officers chose their profession so that they can help others.

During this time of year we often experience families in need, but don't have the ability to help directly. By filling our cop cars, we can see to it that those who need a helping hand can get it. We are asking that you purchase an extra item or two and help us help those that are less fortunate. The back seats of the patrol vehicles are usually used to transport people that have run afoul of the law. Help us put them to good use.

Officers will be at the following locations in Clinton County:

Village Food Pride, 501 S. Main Street, Ovid

Krogers, 900 S. Business 127, St. Johns

Wal-Mart, 1165 Superior Driver, St. Johns

All food collected at these locations will be donated to the food banks at The Basic Needs Center in St. Johns. The officers of the St. Johns Police Department, Clinton County Sheriff's Department and Ovid Police Department appreciate your generosity during this holiday season.

It is another Wednesday morning and I'm a bit excited because Tammy has come over and is washing my kitchen walls, ceiling, and doing an amazing job on my kitchen fan that is over the oven. It looks as if it just came out of the box. She is doing an awesome job and I feel privileged to have her here. I also feel a bit spoiled which is kind of nice. At the rate she is going my whole kitchen will be sparkling and could do a modeling job!!! I should have taken a "before" picture.

It is already Thursday morning and though I have been on the move all week long, I seem to need a bit of time to collect and focus my thoughts and intentions. Yesterday, I did manage to catch up on folding the laundry...I'm ecstatic that I don't have any ironing to do. I still have a few more clothes to put away which is not such a bad thing. I just wish that my son wouldn't automatically throw the clothes from the dryer onto the freezer, the washer and the dryer and then have a bout of indignity because he can't find anything.

Last week was a blur of activity and I feel badly that I forgot to wish you all a Happy Thanksgiving Day that was filled with the joy of family and friends. My list of attendees had dwindled from twenty-two down to a mere eight. And what a group that was, my house was filled with much laughter and a great deal of kidding. It was also the first time that I was not ready to put out the feast as soon as all the guests arrived. Some were early for which I am thankful and some were late, so my visitation time was more open. I believe that we all counted our blessings and I have had many to acknowledge. I made more dinner rolls and half of them were dispersed before the dinner began. I made less pies and it didn't matter....everyone was full to overflowing. And we all got a good laugh when Ryan and Isabella set the dinner table and used tablespoons instead of the teaspoons. Jake kept snitching the dinner rolls and didn't mind being caught in the act.

I forgot to tell you all about Amy and her amazing pebble art. She has a beautiful skill set that flows across her choice of canvas. Understand that I'm being a bit illusive when I call her background a canvas. Her wood burning is elegant and the placement of Michigan pebbles make a very charming scene. I'm now on the hunt for some perfect rocks for her to apply her artistic talents. I need to check out Rolayne and Carl's rock pile for some perfect specimen. I also caught a look at her sketch book and hope that she will help me make a pattern for the Unicorn apron that Isabella has requested for Christmas.

The "Lavender Lady" from the St John's area is also another very knowledgeable person that is over at the Village of Ashley Christmas. Annette has been growing her lavender and harvesting it manually on six acres for a number of years. She also dries it by hand, if you have the time come on down and visit with her, she has much information to share. She also does all the hand weeding that many of our dedicated gardeners do. I find it very interesting that she and Deb (the bee lady) live in close proximity to each other's farms which is beneficial for both. Lavender is good for your skin and after a raw cut is healed and closed the scar can be diminished by using lavender oil. Did you know that lavender is a naturally anti-viral and anti-bacterial? If you can't make it over to the 1225 Train you can contact Annette by email at Milavenderpatchfarms@yahoo.com. The Lavender Lady has started to make her own essential oils and can explain the soothing powers of lavender.

This morning I have put together my first Christmas plate and will deliver it later this morning, I must admit that I put more food and less fufu in the first one. The cookie decorating party on Christmas Eve has been confirmed and I may need only to make about ten dozen cookies. I have a great deal of sprinkles and colors and colored sugars on hand for the festive occasion and of course I have the tubes and decorating tips to amuse everyone. I will also have my homemade lasagna ready for those who might prefer a little dinner to go with all the sweets.

I would like to say that I have some of my Christmas cards ready for the mail...but if I did I would be stretching the truth to the breaking point. Since I don't have the time this morning it will be moved to my Monday morning agenda, today I will bake and make fudge for this weekend. I should be able to stay out of trouble. May God bless you daily and may you enjoy the opportunities that surround you, many times there are more than we perceive. God bless.

New Recycling Facility to Open in December

submitted by Ellen Link

Barring some freak snowstorm that shuts down the roads, the GLR will be thrilled to hold the next recycling drive in the new Greater Laingsburg Community Recycling Center on Sat., December 11, 9 am to 1 pm! You'll find us on Woodbury Rd. just south of old Grand River (look for our spiffy sign). Many generous and far-sighted people came together to create this waste reduction resource for thousands of people in the Laingsburg vicinity. A grand opening with all the hoopla will be planned and announced as soon as possible.

So, what's the plan? For now, recycling patrons will drive into the building and stay in their cars while volunteers unload their materials. Due to the nasty new virus variant, we'll need to take special safety precautions for a while, hence we will all be vaccinated and wearing masks. We want everyone to have happy, healthy holidays. And then, stay tuned. As we're all learning, things continue to change—viruses, recyclable materials, frequency of recycling drives... Let's hope that in 2022 they will all change for the better.

The holiday season always seems to result in lots of trash—wrapping paper and ribbon, single-use plates, utensils, etc., Styrofoam and boxes. This year please give some thought to reducing that waste, and to choosing gifts that are Fair Trade, made locally, or are designed with sustainability in mind. Need some ideas? We'll try to offer some on our website.

In case you're new or forgetful, clean and dry materials accepted every month at recycling drives include: newspaper and phone books; tin and scrap metal; aluminum (separate); corrugated cardboard (include brown paper bags here); boxboard; mixed office paper (no adhesives), junk mail and magazines; books; #1 plastics (bottles and jars—no clamshells, e.g., takeout, berries and salad containers); and #2 plastics (milk jugs/cloudy separated from solid color containers). We also accept household batteries; please separate into regular, rechargeable and lithium. Unfortunately, we cannot accept glass right now but hope that will change in the future. The GLR cannot accept plastic bags or polystyrene/Styrofoam (the latter is accepted at the St. Johns Lions', Meridian Township and East Lansing sites). We also take empty inkjets from Canon, Brother and HP.

You can visit our website--https://recyclelaingsburg.wixsite.com/mysite or Facebook page for this and more information—like how to sign up to volunteer (we need you like you need us). Volunteering with the GLR, which is run completely by volunteers, is a great opportunity for Scouts, honor students, and others looking to do public service. As always, recyclers from any community are welcome. We rely on donations to cover our costs but they are not mandatory. For questions re: what we take or more information about anything mentioned, contact Terry or Ellen Link at (517) 651-2005 or Beth Lange at 651-6437. Happy Holidays!

The Thanksgiving Community dinner was a great success on Thanksgiving Day in downtown Ovid. Over 150 people (between dine-in and take-out) enjoyed a delicious dinner prepared by Suzanne & Chara from Country Kitchen. Desserts were donated from community members including 20 pies from Leonard Elementary. Larry Bosom delivered sixteen meals to shut-Ins. Donations from those who enjoyed the meal totaling $800 will be going towards the Ovid Christmas Basket Project.

Safe Ways for Seniors to Volunteer

Charitable organizations rely on the efforts of volunteers to meet their missions every day. People of all ages can volunteer, and a great number of volunteers are seniors.

A 2016 survey from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics found that nearly one-quarter of American volunteers are age 65 and over. That was never more apparent than during the COVID-19 pandemic, when many nonprofit organizations were suddenly forced to confront a volunteer shortage due to the adoption of social distancing guidelines that were designed to keep vulnerable populations, such as seniors, as safe as possible. One study from Fidelity Charitable found that two out of three volunteers decreased or stopped contributing time during the pandemic.

The rollout of various COVID-19 vaccines has allowed vaccinated individuals to return to a certain degree of pre-pandemic normalcy. However, the threat posed by strains of the virus like the Delta variant has made some seniors apprehensive about returning to volunteering. Though each individual should consider various factors before returning to volunteering during the pandemic, the following are some options seniors can consider as they aim to safely pitch in once again.

- Look for contactless opportunities. Interactions with the people they help and work alongside is what drives many volunteers to lend a helping hand. That's especially so for seniors whose children have grown up and moved out. In person interactions may be too risky during the pandemic, but seniors can still volunteer via contactless opportunities. For example, in lieu of delivering meals by hand, seniors who work with organizations such as Meals on Wheels can deliver prepackaged meals outside recipients' residences.
- Pitch in with fundraising. A report from Giving USA released in 2021 revealed that Americans gave more to charity in 2020 than in 2019. That increase came in spite of an economic downturn that saw millions of people lose their jobs or take pay cuts as companies scrambled to deal with lost revenue related to the pandemic. Though giving might have increased in 2020, many nonprofit organizations, including local community theaters, likely suffered due to cancellations and audience restrictions. As a result, many local nonprofit organizations are in need of financial support. Seniors who want to pitch in but stay safe can volunteer to help local organizations raise funds. Seniors can participate in fundraising efforts from the comforts of their own homes.

• Offer professional expertise. Many seniors retired after spending decades mastering their crafts, and that experience can be an invaluable resource to local nonprofit organizations. Seniors can offer professional advice and mentor youths remotely via apps like Zoom without putting their physical health at risk.

Seniors concerned for their safety can still lend a hand by volunteering with their favorite nonprofit organizations.

It's ok to be Sensitive Dear Andy,

Why do I take thing so personally? I often feel as if I am on the defense all the time. People tell me to "just get over it" or "stop being so hard on yourself." My boyfriend upsets me all the time over some of the most mundane issues. Sometimes I just can't shake it. My family laughs at the goofy things he says but I feel as if he is setting me up to make me the butt of a joke. My friends say, "he didn't mean it like that" or "let it go," or "don't sweat the small stuff." Sometimes I feel everyone, including myself, is disappointed in my decisions or what I say. I am thinking there is something wrong with me. Most of the time I only feel this way with my boyfriend or immediate family. At work I feel confident and respected and valued. Feeling Criticized too much, Beth (not my real name)

Dear Beth,

Psychologists call this trait "Social Perfectionism." You may have some lifelong habits of worrying about what others think about you. It can put you on the defense or hurt your feelings easily. Most people have sincere intentions in trying to make you feel better by giving you the advice to "not care what others think" but the truth is "it is ok to care about what others think" about you. It is a normal social response especially if you have spent your life trying to do your best. Typically, when we want to strive for the best, we are toughest on ourselves. So, when others find fault or are being too picky about what we do or say, it is because we have learned to be critical of our flaws in a society that we think expects perfectionism.

In our cultural we grow up with low esteem when we do not acknowledge our good characteristics and positive strengths. We need to have more positive self-talks. Repeating affirmations to encourage us to value our self and opinions. It is important stay positive when you are having your "zero to 60" internal dialogs. Spend time around people and friends who respect you for who you are and appreciate your contributions. As a sensitive person who cares what other think or feel, it is surprising how much influence other people have in our adult lives, even the ones who seem to care about us the most or the one we spend a lot of time with at work, socially or in a family situation. Sometimes we need to weed out negative people in our lives and make friends with more positive and uplifting individuals. Change your thinking. Your thought affect how you feel. Keep your thoughts kinds and your words to yourself kind. Be nice to you.

There is a psychologist who has a blog to encourage individuals to find methods to work on personal growth in understanding why we take things so personally.... https://nickwignall.com. If you are interpreting remarks or other opinions as a personal criticism more than you can handle, ask your family doctor or minister for a referral to a counselor. Often to stop taking things personally, you may need a deeper understand of the reason you are a "social perfectionist." So, learn to be more assertive, be proud of yourself and accomplishments or achievements. No more negative self-talk.

Look in the mirror every day and tell yourself that you "love and approve of yourself." It is hard to not take things personally when you are in the habit to "being on the defense, all the time." Good luck on your continued journey of selfreflection and growth. It takes time. And it is ok to not be per-Andy @ask_andy.com

Drunken Raisins

Growing up in the country the Weekly Sportsman has heard many ole time natural cures for aches, remedies, pains, and sicknesses. There was an old farmer down the road that spoke of a "healing tree" that he would visit and chew on the leaves belonging to that old cherry tree long before cherry juice concentrate from Traverse City was marketed for healthy living. He also wore farmer jeans everyday that carried a magnet in one pocket and a piece of copper in the other to help relieve pain long before copper garments were sold on infomercials. Then there was a great grandfather who had walnuts everyday at lunch and grew Jerusalem artichokes to fight diabetes fifty years before health studies and doctors praised their consumption. Many books have been written chocked full of such examples and modern day medical trials and scientific studies are slowly starting to show evidence that many work and shouldnt be dismissed as mere place-

Recently the Weekly Sportsman has witnessed several family members and friends have arthritic pain in joints either disappear or become somewhat tolerable while consuming "drunken raisin" on a daily basis. This concoction drew national attention about thirty years ago when Paul Harvey spoke of making drunken raisins. It is easy to be a skeptic if you don't have a background or knowledge understanding that modern day pharmacy has its roots in literally centuries around the world of using natural items alone or mixed together to cure ailments. Could consuming nine yellow raisins per day that were soaked in gin on the counter for nine days really help arthritis? Is it really that simple? The simple answer is yes. Some skeptics will say that raisins have too much sugar and can harm diabetics and that gin soaked raisins will cause recovering alcoholics to want to drink again. Is this possible? Maybe, but let's look at the two ingredients in drunken raisins and what has been discovered by current day modern science and med-

Drunken raisins are made from yellow raisins that are dehydrated using sulfur dioxide to preserve their natural color and not turn dark. In small doses sulfur has been shown to not only have antioxidants but also anti inflammatory properties when it comes to arthritis. As for the gin part, well gin is made from juniper berries and juniper extract has been shown to reduce inflammation in lab tests with animals. So sulfur and juniper combined in the form of drunken raisins kind of does make sense. The Weekly Sportsman suggests, after consulting your doctor, giving it a try because raisins aren't that bad for diabetics and there won't be enough alcohol left in the nine raisins a day dosage to even come close to making you drunk. What's the worst that could happen? A placebo effect that makes you feel better even if it is just in the mind?

Directions:

Take a glass jar and fill with a cup or two of yellow or golden raisins. Cover the raising just enough with gin so they are soaked but not swimming. Place the jar in a cool dark place with a cheesecloth over the top which will let most of the alcohol evaporate and leave raisins swollen and full of juniper. Let the jar sit for at least nine days. Consume nine a day and make sure you start succession batches so your homemade medication does not run out too soon.

Don't let some aches and pains keep you indoors this winter!

-WS

How can you personally know God? How can you go to Heaven?

These are important questions. Questions of eternal significance. Life

Some believe that if the good things that they do outweigh the bad, then God will let them into Heaven. This is incorrect, but it shows that people intuitively know that something needs to be done.

Religious Thoughts

by Chris Hearn

Paul writes in 1 Corinthians 15:1-2, "Now, brothers and sisters, I want to remind you of the gospel I preached to you, which you received and on which you have taken your stand. By this gospel you are saved...'

Paul gives us two very important facts about the gospel, which are also true about salvation. One is that it must be received and the second is that it saves

Salvation must be received. No one is born into Christianity. No one is born into a personal relationship with God.

Receiving salvation can be seen as receiving a gift. For example, we all know from having birthday parties that we don't do anything to receive a birthday gift. You expect your friends to give you presents on your birthday. You don't have to go out and shovel out their driveway to earn your birthday present. You don't have to fix a person's leaky faucet, or mow their lawn or do some other kind of favor for that person before he or she will give you your present. It is a free gift. You just take it and enjoy.

Receiving salvation also means that people must believe in the gospel. People must believe with their hearts and minds.

Believing in the gospel is not just an emotional experience, though coming to faith in God can certainly be that. It is not just nodding in agreement about the life, death on the cross and bodily resurrection of Jesus Christ, as if it were just an academic exercise. Rather it takes both, heart and mind, to believe in the gospel and come to true faith in God.

And what is the gospel? It's a word that means, "good news." The good news that although our sins separate us from God, Jesus, fully human and fully God, lived a perfect life and died on the cross for our sins. Jesus three days later rose bodily from the dead. Faith alone in Jesus' death and bodily resurrection from the dead is what brings you into a personal relationship with God and grants you entrance into Heaven when you die.
